ZOLA'S POSTHUMOUS NOVEL, "TRUTH," KINDLES INTEREST.

New York, Feb. 22.—Ernest A. Vizetelly's translation of Zola's posthumous novel, "Truth," appears on Monday simultaneously in New York and London, from the publishing-house of John Lane.

Besides the pathetic interest it possesses as the last attended. Services Were Held at St. George's Church in Belleville. Besides the pathetic interest it possesses as the last utterance of a great master of fiction, it has an autobiographical and historical value as explaining the attitude he assumed in the Dreyfus case, and as summing up his opinions on the questions of secular versus religious education, which have divided and are dividing France into two hostile camps.

The Good Government League of Belleville will hold its annual meeting to-night. The question of putting up a ticket or indorsing candidates who have already been announced for the spring election will be decided.

ming up his opinions on the questions of secular versus religious education, which have divided and are dividing France into two hostile camps.

This double purpose is achieved by making the plot of "Truth" turn upon a scandal similar in its outcome and its results to the Dreyfus scandal, but affecting not the army, but the church.

As in the affair of Dreyfus, an innocent Hebrew is made the scapegoat of the real criminal. The moral is exactly that which
M. Zola sought to enforce in his advocacy of Dreyfus—the ignominy and even the futility of falsehood, the debasing effects of credulity and ignorance and the health and power that come from knowledge, the latter being the stepping-atone to truth, which ends by triumphing against all the powers that were arrayed against her.

Briefly, the plot concerns itself with the murder of an orphan boy of 13, the nephew of a Hebrew schoolmaster, with whom he resides, but the son of a Catholic mother and himself a Catholic by education and a pupil in the Brothers' school. He is found dead in his bed one morning—the morning
following the day of his first communion.

At first there is no clew to the assassin.
Simon, the schoolmaster who teaches in the secular schools, is not suspected. He establishes what is accepted as a thoroughly satisfactory alibi. His reputation and his antecedents are all in his favor. Even the favorite paper of the masses, Le Petit Beautunnoir, fully exonerated him.

Then herrible whispers are circulated. It is found that the murder had been prompted by the desire to hide an unnatural crime.
Suspicion falls upon the cerical teachers in the religious school. Abominable stories are revived, especially one which had been stifled in the previous year, which con-Cases set for trial in the Circuit Court at Belleville this week are:

are revived, especially one which had been stifled in the previous year, which con-cerned a brother whom his superiors had conjured away to save him from the Assize Court.

"Nobody could have mistaken the public hostility against the Prethess and all the "Nobody could have mistaken the punishostility against the Brothers and all the vague rumors, all the horrid stories hushed up in the past aggravated that hostility in such wise that he was threatened with some abominable scandal in which the whole Catholic and reactionary party might collarse."

such wise that he was threatened with some abominable scandal in which the whole Catholic and reactionary party might collapse."

It is recognized by the Brothers that something must be done to save alike the church and party. Evidence must be manufactured to implicate the Hebrew schoolmaster, so turning the popular favor from the ministers of the church to the Semitic population. The place of the famous bordereau is taken in this story by a paper which one Father Philbin had removed from the mouth of the dead boy. It had evidently been used as a gag to suppress the victim's cries. This paper has been long enough in the hands of Father Philbin and his associates to be tampered with. Forgery is supplemented by perjury to make it a damning hit of evidence against Simon. His alibi is discredited. Le Pet't Beaumanol' at once changes front and bitterly attacks the schoolmaster. When Simon appears at the funeral he is met with furious cries "To death, to death with the Jew!"

Simon was arrested. Like Dreyfus, he is found guilty at his first trial and transported to a penal settlement, where he undergoes terrible tortures. But he has friends, among the Hebrews, and the more impartial Christians work unceasingly to clear away the mystery and obtain for him a new trial. The real criminal, it turns out, is one Brother Georgias. His accomplices confess, and he flees the country. A new trial is granted to the victim, the issue of which is substantially the same as that of the second trial of Dreyfus.

This is how the whole affair is summed up in the mind of Simon's most loyal friend and champion, Marie Froment, who is in some respects Zola himself:

"The only regret which Marie now experienced was that he had not been able to utilize that prodigious Simon affair as an admirable lesson of things which would have instructed the masses. There was the complicity of all the powerful and all the oppressors banding themselves together to crush a poor, innocent man, whose innocence imperilled the compact of human exultiation which the pulpit of the First Baptist Caurch at Granite City vesterday.

—The body of Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Brady of St. Louis was brought to Alton yesterday morning and taken to SS. Peter and Paul's Cathedral in State street, where services were conducted by the Reverent Father Thomas E. Cusack. The burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

—Superintendent R. A. Haight of the Alton schools will depart for Cincinnati this morning to attend a meeting of the school superintendents of the United States.

—The annual praise service of the Woman's Missionary Seelety of the First Presbyterian Caurch at Alton was held last evening. The pastor, the Reverend H. K. Sanborne, delivered an address on "The Land of the Turk." The Reverend Mr. Sanborne spent five years in Turkey and appeared in a Turkish costume during his address last evening.

9884-MISSES' FANCY WAIST. 12, 14 and 16 years.

The back is plain across the shoulders and the in close to the belt, where slight finess is arranged in small plaits. The est is wide at the neck and tapers to a point. It is permanently attached to the right lining front, and closes invisibly on the left.

The lining is faced with crepe to a pointed yoke depth, and adorned with medaillons of lace. The full fronts are tucked and applied to outline the yoke. The tucks are stitched down about half way, and provide stylish fullness over the bust, which blouses at the belt.

A plain crepe collar is finished with a lace protector. The full portion of the sleeve is tucked to correspond with the front of the waist and attached to the lower edge of a fitted cap. It is gathered at the wrist and arranged on a cuff, over which it droops stylishly at the back. Bands of lace trim the yoke, caps and cuffs.

Attractive blouses in this mode may be made of crepe de Chine, Lansdowne, albatross, veiling, silk muslin, liberty satin or any soft, clinging fabric, with velvet, satin or Persian panne for trimming.

To make the waist in the medium size will require one and three-fourths yards of material forty-four inches wide. The pattern, No. 8884, is cut in sizes for misses of 12, 14 and 15 years.

Misses' Five-Gore Flare Skirt, No. 8864— It can scarcely be said that flounce skirts are going out, but just now the fashion world is accepting plain skirts with much favor. They must, however, have a sheath effect from belt to knee, and that decided flare which is necessary in all stylish models. effect from a secessary in an index which is necessary in an index models.

Such a skirt is illustrated here, developed in dark red panne zibeline, with trimming bands of black moire. It is made with five gores—a narrow front and sides, with wide backs fitted smoothly around the waist and hlus without darts. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
